

Day 14

This whole half of the valley has been abandoned by dwarves for years – it should be an excellent place to establish the nursery. The dwarves have enjoyed respite from winter's wrath for too long. Ravisin and I will avenge Vurnis, starting with these Ten-Towns sympathizers.

Day 25

I have found a most peculiar little workshop. It's by far the most intact of all the mines I've yet seen. The dwarves left loads of black ore behind, which is strange because it looks as if they may have killed each other over it. There are a few zombies scattered about, but they should make for good fertilizer once dealt with.

Day 43

I am certain the undead are dealt with yet I am hearing occasional whispers in the halls. I'll sort it out soon. It's not like the rocks are speaking.

Day 62

The experiments? They are going well, yes. My plants grow strong, and the mushrooms do well here. Even Geluvicken will be proud of my accomplishments.

Day 104

The plants are grown now, yes. They speak to me, tell me I am a sapling, they say. I will grow strong, too. They will help, yes..
